

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

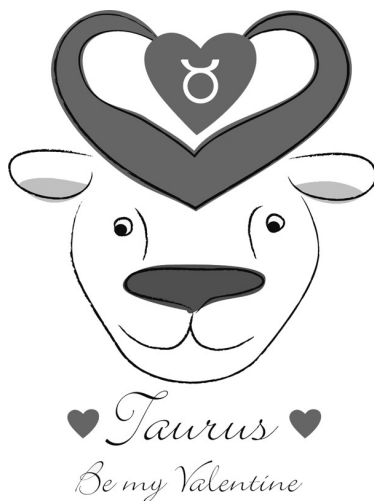

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Let's review!

Learning Outcome

Exchange information about hypothetical situations in written and spoken interactions according to work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Which type of person are you most and least compatible with?
- Do you believe that astrology can tell you which people are good matches for you? Why or why not?

Can Do Statements

- I can express opinions and beliefs.
- I can say what happened and what was happening, what had happened, and what had been happening.
- I can speculate about the past with different degrees of certainty.

Let's Explore!

Peter explains why Aquarius and Taurus aren't a good love match

* "A good love match" is when two people work well together in a love relationship.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Vanessa: So, Peter. I'm curious now. What can you tell me about my sign? My birthday is May 9.

Peter: It's good, you are a Taurus.

Vanessa: Why?

Peter: Tauruses seem to get along with everyone. They are generous, dependable, and down-to-earth. They have a lot of common sense. They are also independent and persistent so employers tend to like them. I used to date a Taurus. Of course, it wasn't perfect but we got along very well. I had just finished school when we met. I had been looking for work and she was very supportive. She was also ambitious and was pushing me to be as well. I think that she really helped me focus on what I wanted to do and organize myself for my job search. The résumé that I used then was written by her. In fact, I have used it ever since.

Vanessa: She must have been really great for you.

Peter: Yes, I recall that the relationship that we had was good, but it could also be volatile. Tauruses have tempers. They can handle stress but when they are pushed too far they can get very angry. That she could quickly lose her temper was a problem for us. She was also quite materialistic and made a lot of expensive purchases. Sometimes I was at my wit's end because of all the money she spent.

Vanessa : That couldn't have been easy for you. I know how frugal you are.

Peter : Yeah. I think that that was what eventually broke us up. We were living together and we ended up getting in a huge fight over her expensive taste. We're not friends but we are courteous to each other. My next girlfriend was a Pisces. A much better match!

Let's Practice!

Vanessa speculates about Peter's ex-girlfriend.

Instructions: Select all the correct answers. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

Which sentences speculate about the past?

- 1) ☐ She must have been really great for you.
- 2) ☐ She was quite materialistic and made a lot of expensive purchases.
- 3) ☐ That couldn't have been easy for you.
- 4) ☐ Money might have been the main problem in your relationship.
- 5) ☐ Dating a Taurus may not have been the best match for you.
- 6) ☐ Tauruses seem to get along with everyone.
- 7) ☐ Dating a Pisces could have made your life much easier!
- 8) ☐ What can you tell me about my sign, Peter?

Let's Practice!

Peter reflects on his experiences.

Instructions: Match the statements from Column A to the ones on Column B. Read the complete sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

COLUMN A

1. It's good that
2. I think that she really helped me to focus on
3. The résumé that I used then
4. That she could quickly lose her temper
5. I think that that was

COLUMN B

- a. what eventually broke us up.
- b. what I wanted to do and organize myself for my job search.
- c. was written by her.
- d. was a problem for us.
- e. you are a Taurus.

Extension Activity

Compare and contrast your star sign to your Chinese astrological sign.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- On the Internet, research your Chinese astrological sign (an animal sign based on your birth year).
- Compare what you know about your star sign to what you learn about your Chinese astrological sign.
- Write a paragraph comparing the two signs and explaining which you think is a more accurate description of you.
- Read your paragraph to your class or group.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I research my Chinese astrological sign.

☐ ☐

I compare my Chinese astrological sign with my star sign.

☐ ☐

I write a paragraph about my comparison.

☐ ☐

I read my paragraph to a group.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- common sense (noun): the ability to use good judgment in making decisions
e.g. They have a lot of common sense.
- to recall (verb): to bring the memory of a past event
e.g. I recall that the relationship that we had was good but it could also be volatile.
- purchase (noun): item obtained with an exchange of money
e.g. She was also quite materialistic and made a lot of expensive purchases.
- at my wit's end (expression): perplexed; frustrated at not being able to solve a problem e.g. Sometimes I was at my wit's end because of all the money she spent.
- courteous (adjective): polite; respectful
e.g. We're not friends but we are courteous to each other.
- to end up (expression): to finally be in a particular place or situation
e.g. We were living together and we ended up getting in a huge fight over her expensive taste.

Learning Points

That-Clauses: Review

Noun clauses are groups of words in a sentence referring to a fact. They can sometimes be replaced by a noun or pronoun.

You use the pronoun that to refer to these clauses.

For example:

*I know that you didn't mean to do it.

You use noun clauses after some nouns and after some adjectives.

That-clauses can be the subject of the sentence. You normally use this structure in formal writing or speaking.

For example:

That we don't care is simply not true.*

When you use a that-clause as the object (after reporting verbs), you often omit that.

For example:

*She promised (that) she would come.

When you report statements, you can use that-clauses in the reported clause.

For example:

She said that she was enjoying the show.

You can omit that after the most common report verbs, such as: agree, mention, notice, promise, say and think. However, you do not remove it if the clause does not come right after the verb.

For example:

He agreed with everyone that it would be better to wait.

Examples:

- *It's good that you are a Taurus.
- *I think that she really helped me to focus on what I wanted to do and organize myself for my job search.
- *The résumé that I used then was written by her.
- *I recall that the relationship that we had was good but it could also be volatile.
- *I think that that was what eventually broke us up.

Learning Points

Narrative Tenses: Review

You use narrative tenses when you want to tell a story. They connect different past events in different ways.

Look at the chart for a summary of narrative tenses and how to use them:

Tense	Use	Example
Simple Past	For completed actions in the past which tell the main event in a story.	It wasn't perfect but we got along very well.
Past Continuous	To set the general scene of a story. To talk about actions in progress at or around a particular point in a story.	She was also ambitious and was pushing me to be as well. We were living together and we ended up getting in a huge fight over her expensive taste.
Past Perfect	Talk about actions or situations that were completed before another action in the story. The past perfect makes the order clear.	I had just finished school when we met.
Past Perfect Continuous	To talk about longer actions or situations which started before and continued up to a point in the story.	I had been looking for work and she was very supportive.

